PREFACE

THIS attempt at collecting the details of a family so widely scattered as that of the Canadian Branch of the Kaiser descendants, must necessarily be brief and to some extent imperfect. As it is no intention to bring out at least a second issue at some date within the next few years, may I ask all those whose names appear in this effort, to send me a list of any errors or omissions found herein, and particularly to correct all dates given by me and add to the numbers additional dates and names as far as possible. By sending me the name and address of any person desiring a copy, I shall try and meet their request.

FAMILY CREST

The Kaiser Families of the County of York, Ontario.

PETER ERLIN KAISER "M" MARY DELABO
JOHNSTOWN, PA. ABOUT 1792.

Peter Erlin Kaiser, an army officer, came from Frankfort-on-Main, to Johnstown, shortly before the American Revolution, where he joined many of his Palatine relatives who migrated in 1709 from the Palatinate, first to England in the Great Exodus, and from thence to the Valley of the Mohawk, in New York, and to the Susquehanna in Pennsylvania. During the revolution he sympathized with the British, and paid the penalty of land confiscation after the war was over. In 1785 he left Johnstown and took up residence at Niagara along with the United Empire Loyalists of that date. Induced by promises of restoration of his lands he returned to Johnstown, where in 1792 he married Mary Delabo, a descendant of one of the original Palatines from Alsace. After three of his children were born, he was still denied not only the promised possession of his lands, but was also, like thousands of others, refused the common right of citizenship.

Under these conditions he decided to join that band of refugees, known as the Pennsylvania Dutch, who in 1800 eked for weeks and months, through unknown forests, in order to reach a British country where civil and religious liberty were granted to every citizen. Thus in 1801 he founded his new home in the County and township of York, where he raised a family of six sons and four daughters, whose descendants, it is now our intended purpose to trace, admittedly in a very imperfect manner, but decidedly interesting up to this date.

In 1821, long before graveyards or cemeteries were established, Peter Erlin Kaiser died on lot 21, Concession 4, York Township, and was buried on the banks of the old Black Creek, which ran through his farm. For many years a large black cherry tree marked his place of interment, and at the time of writing, scarcely a trace of the tree can be found—a fate which has, too often, befallen the original pioneers.

Before passing in detail to the descendants of Peter Erlin Kaiser, we may add a few words in regard to his ancestry, as far as tradition, historic data, and speculation will permit one to go. It appears reasonably certain that he was born about the year 1759, was married in 1792 and that he died in 1824. It is a tradition in the family, handed down to us by his children, that he arrived in New York possessed of considerable wealth. This is borne out by the fact that he shortly afterwards purchased a part of the land upon which now stands the city of Johnstown, Pa., and further evidenced by the circumstance that in 1801 when he arrived in York township he not only bought 199 acres of choice land, Lots 23 and 24, but was able to pay for it in cash, an unusual procedure in those days. Another tradition upon which the early families were well versed, and which were listened to with a considerable degree of interest, was that he could trace his history back for 500 years among the denizens of the river Rhine. No doubt he had Ancestors, and no doubt about where they came from, but now for the historic data upon which one may rely for corroboration of those peculiar family dreams. Let me here make an observation upon the name itself. The original word "Kaiser" was merely a Saxondized way of pronouncing "Caesar".

"Erlin" is a prefix, such as "Mac" in MacDonald and signifies "The son of". In the original conveyance of 1's lands in York the name was spelled Peter Erlinkaiser. Succeeding generations considered this name too long; they dropped the "Erlin" and substituted the letter "E". Having regard to the family in the old land, let us call to our assistance the story of the "Kaiser" Crest is told by Dr. Ferdinand Seeger, an Ex. Regent of the College of Heraldry, of the City of New York, the best authority on these matters known on this continent. In the year 1918, I succeeded in getting his help, to the end that the "Kaiser" family in America may become possessed of the facts, and here they are reliable or otherwise:

KAISER.

The Herewith Coat of Arms is the Kaiser armorial of original grant, dating from the First Crusade of A.D. 1096, in which it was first borne by a Sir Knight Crusader Johann von Kaiser (see Foytabend's History of the Crusades and Crusaders, Frankfurt, A.D. 1583). He seems to be the first of the name of authentic records.

This armorial is shown in the famous compilation 9 (151 volumes) entitled "Grosses und Allgemeines Wappenbuch" von J. Siebmacher Enthaltend Zwei Tausend Historisch Begründete Familien Wappen, Nurnberg, 1857. (Great and General Book of Coats of Arms by J. Siebmacher, containing two thousand historically authenticated Coats of Arms of historical families Nurnberg, 1857.)

See also Helmar's Emeuztes und Varmehrtes Wappenbuch, Nurnberg, 1699, Section Ritter und Adelspersonen, (Helmar's New and Enlarged Book of Coats of Arms, Nurnberg, 1699, Section on Knights and Nobility.)

See also Die Allgemeine Deutsche Biographie (Dictionary of German Biography.)

From these and other authorities with data of this historical family in the N.Y. Public Library, Library of Congress at Washington, D.C., etc., it is evident that the Kaiser coat of arms is

TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF OF BUREAU OF MINES

DR. J. H. HARRIS
CHICAGO, ILL.
SIR:

Yours very truly,
J. H. HARRIS

one of the coats of arms of proven historic record, going back 322 years, to the First Crusade of 1096.

At the time of the Crusades the Princes and Knights were obliged to adopt various devices or emblems by which they and their commands could be recognized.

It is to the time of the Crusades that we can ascribe the establishment of armorial bearings in their present form, when the necessity of quickly recognizing each of the numerous leaders seems to have compelled the princes and knights to adopt a methodical arrangement of various distinguishing devices borne on surcoat and banner and soon after on the shield. (See the Symbolisms of Heraldry or a Treatise on the Meanings and Derivations of Armorial Bearings by Sir W. Cecil Wade, F.R.A.S. etc.)

Siebrmacher describes the Coat of Arms as follows:

The upper part of the shield is red with two silver swords crossed, with gold hilts, the lower part blue with a silver bar. Helmet silver, coronet gold surmounted with a lion's head in blue. The Mantling (scroll work at the sides of the helmet and shield) a blending of blue and silver. The Herewith Coat of Arms is a reproduction from an antique original engraving of 1699 in the N.Y. Public Library. The engravers' art at this period was still very crude. An engraver of the present time would produce a far more artistic result. Done in the true and correct heraldic colors it would indeed be a most superb and historic office decoration.

Let us now trace his descendants and incidentally indicate by an "Honor Role", and otherwise, a part of the services rendered by this family to the Dominion of Canada.
